

MORNING APPEAL

WEDNESDAY, FEBRUARY 27

SALARY TINKERING.

The bill tinkering with the salaries of the State officers, by reducing them below a point where office holding could be made honorable, or profitable to any one, was very properly tabled, on Monday, and yesterday an effort to lift it from the table failed. The salaries of the State officers have been several times lowered, and another cut would simply turn the offices over to men who would take them with an idea of making both ends meet by jobbery and dishonesty.

The salaries are low enough as they are, and the APPEAL advises the members to devote their attention to irrigation and State improvement, and quit the cheese paring economy involved in the passage of bills of that character.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

WASHINGTON, Feb., 18, 1889.

ED. CARSON CITY APPEAL:—The arrangements for entertaining the quarter of a million of people expected here by the 4th of March are almost completed. The Pennsylvania Railroad will have its two thousand passenger coaches in service; the Baltimore and Ohio will do likewise and is also putting down extra tracks to accommodate the travelers.

The Presidential party will come on from Indianapolis in President Roberts' private car, and will stay at the Johnson annex to the Arlington Hotel; a house formerly belonging to R. Johnson and now attached to the Arlington.

A great many associations of cranks want to march in line on the 4th of March including some "Carrie Harrison Clubs," but they were firmly informed that it was poetically speaking "no go."

All the merchants on Pennsylvania Avenue regardless of political demonstration are going to decorate, but so far as that is concerned, "political demonstrating don't count here anyway, as no man hath a vote in this "District."

Mrs. Cleveland looked her loveliest at the last reception given to the Army and Navy, but the crowd was something awful. According to present rulings, these "card" receptions are a hollow mockery. Anybody and everybody goes and the crush is enough to tear one's clothes to tatters.

There was a steady down pour of rain at the last Saturday reception, and the crowd was admitted to the East room out of the storm; a very proper and considerate thing for the President to do.

After the reception was over, and Mrs. Cleveland went up stairs, she turned and cast one "longing lingering look," upon the array below her. The people prompt to express appreciation gave three cheers for the mistress of the White House.

Senator Stewart of Nevada made an able speech last evening at the Irish mass-meeting, which is approved by all persons interested in the success of the Irish cause.

By the way, speaking of Senator Stewart, what a magnificent big-hearted splendid man he is. He has recently ordered a Record Book, made to order for Grand Army Post No. 5, in Carson City. The volume is beautifully bound, embossed and engraved with the name of the donor stamped upon the corner. These volumes are being rapidly placed in the Posts by public spirited men to secure the complete Military and Naval history of every Union Soldier of the late war.

Among the prominent names who have given these books are, Senators Stewart, Farwell and Palmer, the Poet Whittier, Charles Francis Adams, Mrs. James A. Garfield, and many other persons of equal note.

—The Graphic, remarking upon the tediousness of Stanley's correspondence in reaching Brussels from Africa, says: "The Postal Service in Africa is almost as bad as in the United States."
